

Blame It All on Our Roots

Nashville's newest hotspot is a little bit country, a little bit rock and roll, and a wholehearted love letter to the humble honky tonk

Above: The Oasis Rooftop overlooks Broadway and features a thatched roof and totem stools at the tiki bar.

A Southern kitchen, a honky tonk, a swanky members club, and a tiki bar get a Music City makeover in this multi-concept venue

PTD worked with an all-star team to bring to life the vision of country icons Garth Brooks and Trisha Yearwood.

Alongside Strategic Hospitality, EOA Architects and a dedicated crew of tradespeople, PTD helped create a venue that welcomes all visitors like they're old friends.

Friends in Low Places is a four-story homage to love, music and showing up just as you are - boots and all.

Upper Right Image: A boardwalk inspired neon sign beckons patrons to The Oasis Rooftop from the second floor of Friends in Low Places Bar and Honky Tonk

Upper Image: A large-scale checkerboard of stained walnut and cream painted wood ground Trisha's Studio Kitchen and is mirrored in the sophisticated cream paneled ceiling with its dramatic wood beams

Lower Image: A rounded bar with gracefully swooping walnut trim and subtle brass accents echo the walnut of the plank floor in The Seven's Club

Learn more

---

---

---

---

Follow us!

---

ptd

Copyright (C) 2024 Patrick Thompson Design. All rights reserved.

Our mailing address is:

Want to change how you receive these emails?

You can update your preferences or unsubscribe