

Osler, Oysters and On the Books

A look at where we've been and here we're going next

Barton Hills Beauty

A mid-century marvel gets a modern makeover

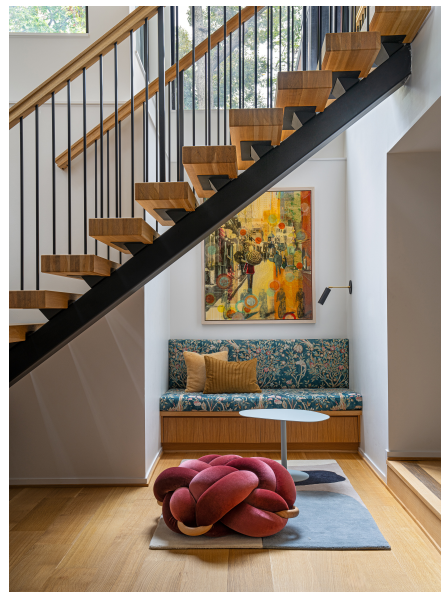

Upper image: The lounge with bespoke banquette and custom built-ins.

Lower image: The home's dining room features a cozy seating area surrounding a concrete clad fireplace with enviable views to both the outdoors and the sunken lounge.

Photography: John D'Angelo

This elevated residence is proof that the smallest details are often the most impactful.

PTD's renovation of this, David Osler residence aimed to celebrate the mid-century bones of the home while updating it to suit a modern family

Upper Right Image: A cozy nook tucked away under the custom stair

Lower Image: The home's kitchen is clad in white oak with Arabescato Corchia countertops and backsplash

Photography: John D'Angelo.

Learn more

The Catch of the Day

A rare find nestled in the heart of Grosse Pointe Park

Above: A nautical inspired logo by Midnite Oil Creative and custom metal screen wall greet guest at the restaurant's entry.

Photography: John D'Angelo.

A Midwestern take on New Orleans' French Quarter

Aesthetic nods to classic oyster bars and a sophisticated palette of pearlescent materials make Brine Oyster House one pearl of a restaurant.

Upper Image: A view down the shotgun style bar.

Lower Image: The second level bar and lounge area has French doors that open onto a gracious balcony.

Photography: John D'Angelo.

Learn more

Retro Renovation

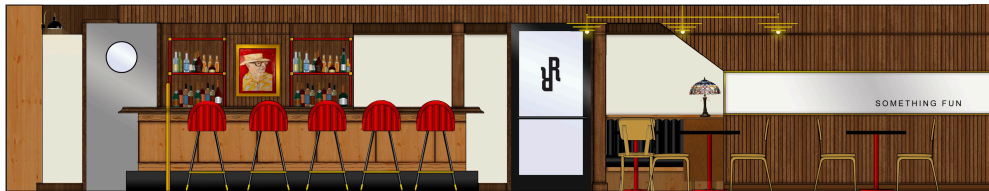

A sneak peek at the new wateringhole you never knew you needed

Above: Schematic rendering of the exterior

Inspired by all things cool and vintage, this is one project to watch.

Think paneled basement bar vibes, but give it the PTD treatment.

Upper and Lower Images: Interior renderings of the restaurant's bar and DJ area

Follow us!

ptd

Copyright (C) 2023 Patrick Thompson Design. All rights reserved.

Our mailing address is:

Want to change how you receive these emails?

You can update your preferences or unsubscribe