

Whether it's a craft cocktail lounge or neighborhood burger and beer joint, Patrick Thompson Design takes pride in creating spaces for people to come together. Here are two PTD projects to keep on your radar when we can once again celebrate spending time with one another. Cheers to that!

Hammer & Nail

This project from 2019 was recently featured in Restaurant Development + Design, highlighting the history and re-envisioned space. "Located in a rehabbed apartment building that once housed Detroit's carpenters' union headquarters, Hammer & Nail is a cocktail bar with a decidedly mid-century modern aesthetic that reflects the building's original design.

The centerpiece of the design is the neon light display behind the bar, which features a hammer striking a nail. Previously, two such pieces were on the top of the building's exterior, highlighting the connection to the carpenters' union and serving as an icon on the Detroit skyline". Shamrock

Here is a look into the process of a project that we have in the works. The Shamrock has been a neighborhood institution in Utica, Michigan since opening in 1935. It's a great place to grab a cold beer and enjoy one of their famous burgers. PTD has been tasked with updating the space for enhanced functionality and design, but also maintain the simplistic vibe that makes this place so special to its loyal patrons. We think you will really enjoy what we have in store. The Shamrock is currently closed for remodeling but we will keep you posted when they have reopened with the new (but not too new) look.
